

Dear Airshow Organizer,

We are the committee that organizes and coordinates the civilian warbird side of the Navy's Legacy Flight program.

Unfortunately, due to huge budget cuts, the Navy is unable able to support us with any funds for 2011. The civilian pilots have always volunteered their service in exchange for the pride of flying our civilian warbirds along side active duty Navy pilots, in support of the Navy's recruiting program and a demonstration of Naval Aviation Heritage.

They only ask their expenses and wear and tear costs on their aircraft be covered.

For those that have applied for an F/A-18 Hornet TACDEMO for your show. We would ask that you also consider sponsoring a Navy Legacy Flight w. a Corsair, Bearcat, Skyraider, Fury, or Helldiver. For approximately $5,000*, and (fuel/hotel/rental car), you will present your crowds an amazing demonstration of Naval Aviation history and help us keep the Navy Legacy Flight program alive. While deciding to sponsor a Legacy Flight will not guarantee you a TACDEMO Hornet demonstration, the Navy has always appreciated the additional recruiting power of a Legacy Flight ... and that is the primary reason for their aerial demonstration programs like the Blue Angels, Leapfrogs and Hornet TACDEMO

- The actual cost is negotiated with the individual lead Legacy Pilot and varies based on many factors. See the support documents for other support requirements for the TACDEMO/Legacy Team

If you would consider generously sponsoring a Legacy Flight at your airshow in 2011, please contact Alan Anders or Rich Sugden with any questions you may have at the email addresses below with the name, date and contact info for your show, along with any warbird preference. We will do everything we can to fulfill your aircraft request, though it may require some additional funding if the plane you are requesting is not based near your show.

We hope you will consider sponsoring us to fly for your show in 2010! Several of us will be at ICAS in Las Vegas Dec. 6-9 stop by our booth and tell us about your airshow.

Thanks for your support!
